4. Does & Don'ts

Everything published about building MRI hardware here is experimental at this stage. This information is intended for researchers at research institutions. They are not targeted at customers. At this time aim of the information is, to find other opinions, of how to plan an MRI scanner, not to give advice how to build one. Building an MRI is potentially dangerous. Under no circumstances anyone should actually try to build an MRI based on the information provided on this page without prior consultation of the contact points given in these documents. Under no circumstances any information on this page should be used or tried on human beings without prior written consent of the contact points given in these documents. Please note that medical devices may only be placed on the market or put into service if they bear the CE marking. For further information please see http://www.bfarm.de/EN/MedicalDevices/marketAcc/_node.html.

5. External Information

Pursuant to section 7, para. 1 of the TMG (Telemediengesetz – Tele Media Act by German law), we as service providers are liable for our own content on these pages in accordance with general laws. However, pursuant to sections 8 to 10 of the TMG, we as service providers are not under obligation to monitor external information provided or stored on our website. Once we have become aware of a specific infringement of the law, we will immediately remove the content in question. Any liability concerning this matter can only be assumed from the point in time at which the infringement becomes known to us.

6. Law of the Federal Republic of Germany

The contractual relationships are governed exclusively by the law of the Federal Republic of Germany. Application of the United Nations Convention on Contracts for the International Sale of Goods (CISG) of 11.04.1990 is excluded.
